#1. In pencil, lightly draw a guide box that is 12 units high and 7 units wide.

#2. Inside the top, draw a section 1 unit high and 5 units wide.

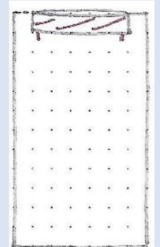

#3. Turn the top of this rectangle into a flat oval that arches just above and just below the top of the box.

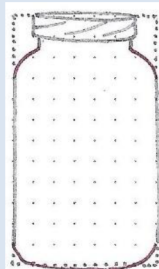

#4. Turn the lower edge of the top rectangle into a dipped line that matches the upper oval.

#5. Draw sharply sloping lines across the upper unit. You may have either two or three. They need to overlap and must touch the edges.

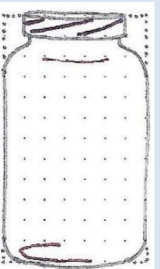

#6. Draw hashmarks under the curved edge. They will be 1/3 unit inside the outer edge of the lid and 1/3 unit high.

#7. Connect the hashmarks with the outer edges of the large rectangle by making sloping shoulders. They should meet at 3 units from the top edge.

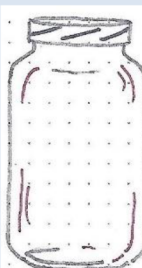

#8. In the lower corners, make curves out of the last unit on each side. Connect these with a dipped line that rests just below the bottom edge of the rectangle.

#9. Draw a short dipping line just over 1 unit from the bottom edge of the lid.

#10. At the bottom, make a 'C' curve about 1 unit high that fits inside the left and lower edge.

#11. Around the sides, make broken lines that fit about 1/2 unit inside the jar edges, following the curves of the sides.

#12. Trace lines in ink and erase pencil.
